DURATION, RENEWAL AND TERMINATION

Mobile

Your mobile contract is for 1 month.

The minimum term will start one working day after we send the SIM.

You can end the service as set out in our terms and conditions. Unless stated otherwise, you'll normally need to give us 30 days notice.

If you stop your services within your minimum term, you might have to pay early termination charges. However, if you cancel because we've made changes to your services, these charges may not apply.

If you have more than one product with us, the contracts may be linked. In some situations, if you can cancel one without early termination charges, you may be able to cancel other linked contracts as well.

If you end a service, you must return any loaned equipment within 60 days. If you don't, you'll be charged.

How we calculate the early termination fee

The fee is calculated as the total remaining monthly charges until the end of your minimum period, minus the costs we save for you leaving early and a 1% discount.

For example, if you have four months left and you pay £35 a month, the cancellation fee would be £67.32.

Please visit our Leaving BT page for a further explanation on how we calculate the cancellation fee.

For more information, please see our terms and conditions.
